

Present Progressive Tense

What is it?

A way to use verbs to talk about the present.

When do I use it?

1. When you want to talk about something that is happening right now.

Example: The kids in the park are laughing right now.

2. When you are talking about something you plan to do in the future

Example: He is going to his sister's house next week

subject	+ correct form of "to be"	+ verb ending in -ing
I	am	walking
you	are	eating
he/she/it	is	sleeping
we	are	doing
they	are	writing

Activity 1: Write the correct form of "to be" for each sentence.

Example: We are doing our homework right now. Please be quiet!

1. Thi and Sofia are fixing the oven.
2. He is baking cookies for the party today.
3. My brother and I are playing soccer in the park
4. I am very excited because I am cooking dinner with my aunt tonight.
5. You are reading in English. Congratulations!

Activity 2: Fill in the blanks to complete each sentence.

Example: Pilar (study) is studying math and geography this semester.

1. I (study) am studying tonight, but tomorrow I want to bake a cake!
2. You (do) are doing too many things at the same time! Can I help you?
3. My dad (wear) is wearing a sweater because it is so cold out today.
4. We (hold) are holding the butter and the eggs while she mixes the flour and sugar.
5. They (drink) are drinking tea and talking to each other at a café.
